"IS HE RICH." Friend Harlow, of the Greenbrier Era, dis-

How often is this question asked! Has an acquaintance married a husband,-- 'is he rich"! is the first inquiry propounded by her friende? Not, "ie be bonest, industrious, scber, and honorable," but, "is he rich?" has he a mind that distinguishes him among his fellow-men, and calls forth their homage thing else-a manly heart a master intellect. he may be upright, steady, industrious, but if be lacks the "dimes and dollars, the dollars and dimes," he is but "as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal." The great sin of our country is idolatry-an idolatry as degrading, yet, as complete as that of the Hindoo, or the Pharisee, yea, more degrading, for there is something awfully grand and impressive in the majestic river, ever moving $900 onward, yet silently, to the great sea, and in the gorgeous luminary of day, as he comes forth from the chambers of night heralded 600 by streaming fire; but we bow down to the Dollar-the dull, senseless Dollar, and make it a God! We work for it by day, we lay in our beds and dream of it by night, we go to the Sanctuary of Christ, and instead of meditating upon His amazing love, and the wonders of His grace, we suffer the Dollar to

Our lives are spent in the service of our reat 400 god-Dollar; we bring up our shildren in the 300 purture of the Dollar, we teach them that 200 the Dollar is the main thing to be gained, we 100,000 teach it by precept and by example. We profess to be charitable, we profess to feel our god-Dollar, than of our Saviour Jesus Christ! and yet, how much better are we, bowing down to allow and yet, with a much better are we. and yet, how much better are we, bowing down to silver and gold? With as much propriety may they send preachers to us, as we to them. The practices of men all around us belie their professions—they profess to be the followers of Christ, and they are the followers of the Dollar. If the realization of the Dollar involves the selling of the widow's people, professed Christians, too, who would not besitate an instant. "Is be rich?" Yes be is rich but riches shall take to themselves Remember that every prize is drawn, and wings and fly away, and when he shall strive to enter heaven, and shall not be able then he will understand how hard it is for a Camel

CIDER.

This is a good time to bottle your cider for winter use. The directions of its production by filtering through sand, etc., are all moonshine. We have seen it tried both ways, and the result is decidedly in favor of bottling it with no further preliminary than having it well corked. Of a winter's night, says a friend at our elbow, it goes very well with
